Three Perspectives on Implementing Global Nursing Leadership in Your Setting

S. Marlene Ruiz MA, BSN
Three Perspectives

• Nursing Research
  – Conducting research to improve health care in other settings
  – Involving in situ nurses in conducting research for their specific countries needs
Three Perspectives

• Nursing Practice
  – Working with International agencies
  – Working at International health care systems
  – Disaster relief
Three Perspectives

• Nursing Student Leadership
  – Gathering student group
  – Electing leaders
  – Delegating responsibilities
  – Negotiating Connections
  – Fund raising
  – International care and education
• Honey I shrunk the earth
  – If we could reduce the world’s population to a small village it would look like this:
  – 57 Asians, 21 Europeans, 14 from N & S America and 8 Africans
  – 70 would be non-Christian, 30 would be Christian
  – 50% of the wealth would be held by 6 people
  – 70 would be unable to read and write
  – 50 would have some degree of malnutrition
  – 80 would live in sub-standard housing
  – Only one would have a college education
Three Perspectives

• The student goal is to enable those they encounter to do the best they can with what they have.
• The nurses goal is to serve the underserved in the world
• Research in their environment, involving their health care providers meet their needs
• Building a better village for all
